IELTS. Ensuring quality, consistency and fairness in international language testing

The International English Language Testing System (IELTS) is a test that measures the language proficiency of people who want to study or work in environments where English is used as a language of communication.

IELTS provides a valid and accurate assessment of the four language skills: listening, reading, writing and speaking. An easy to use 9-band scale clearly identifies proficiency level, from non-user (band score 1) through to expert (band score 9).

IELTS treats all test takers with the utmost fairness and respect by actively avoiding cultural bias and by accepting all standard varieties of native-speaker English, including North American, British, Australian and New Zealand English.

Fair and consistent delivery of the test is ensured by secure technology and the continual monitoring of examiners and test results as well as test center management and facilities.

This high quality and secure test helps organizations like yours (whether an educational institution, government professional body or commercial organization) identify people with the appropriate level of English language proficiency.

“IELTS gives us a reliable indication of entry level. Other tests are less satisfactory at providing this.”

Lecturer in Academic English and Study Skills, Kings College London, UK

Each year, more IELTS tests are taken than any other high stakes English language tests.
A choice of two tests to better meet your needs

IELTS is the four-skills test that has become the world’s most popular high stakes English language proficiency test for study, work and global migration. The format each test takes has remained consistent since 1995.

You can select the test that best suits the needs of your organization.

Both IELTS Academic and General Training are graded using the same criteria. The distinction between the Academic and the General Training tests lies in the subject matter of the Reading and Writing components.

For a detailed breakdown of IELTS test components, please refer to page 10.

IELTS Academic measures English language proficiency needed for an academic, higher learning environment. The tasks and texts are accessible to all test takers, irrespective of the focus of each student’s studies to date.

IELTS General Training measures English language proficiency in a practical, everyday context. The tasks and texts reflect both workplace and social situations.

*The Listening and Speaking components are the same for both tests.
Over 9,000 organizations in over 140 countries rely on IELTS to help select the right people. These organizations include:

- all universities and the vast majority of education providers in Australia, New Zealand and the UK, as well as most universities in Canada
- over 3,000 institutions in the US
- immigration authorities in Australia, Canada, New Zealand and the UK
- professional registration bodies worldwide, covering areas such as accounting, engineering, law, medicine and nursing
- a wide range of employers from sectors such as banking and finance, government, construction, energy and natural resources, aviation, health and tourism
- universities in non-English speaking countries where English is the language of instruction.

Reach out to new test takers
Let test takers know that you accept IELTS results by listing the entry requirements of your institution/organization on the IELTS website at www.ielts.org/recognition. See page 6 for details.

The international English language test

International partners
IELTS is owned by a global partnership of education and language experts: the British Council, IDP: IELTS Australia and Cambridge English Language Assessment. These organizations are dedicated to academic excellence, cultural understanding, student placement and enabling success worldwide.

International consultation
IELTS has been developed in close consultation with academics, professional bodies and immigration authorities from around the world.

International content
The IELTS approach is recognized as being fair, reliable and valid to all test takers, whatever their nationality, cultural background, gender or special needs. The test questions are developed by a network of IELTS test material writers in Australia, Canada, New Zealand, UK and US.

International delivery and accessibility
IELTS tests are offered up to four times a month in over 1,000 test venues in more than 140 countries. The cost of taking the test is set locally and payable in the local currency, making registration more convenient for test takers. Results are issued to test takers 13 calendar days after the test.

IELTS test centers can send Test Report Forms directly to your organization or institution (provided it has been nominated by the test taker), either by mail or as an electronic download.

View the worldwide list of IELTS test centers at www.ielts.org/testcenters

International English
IELTS accepts all standard varieties of native-speaker English, including North American, British and Australian. The Listening component also includes a variety of native speaker accents from Australia, Canada, New Zealand, UK and US.

IELTS for UK Visas and Immigration
Find out how the IELTS result can be used for this purpose at www.ielts.org/uk. For more information on going to or staying in the UK, visit www.gov.uk.
Over the past three decades, feedback provided by organizations and institutions which recognize IELTS has been instrumental in developing the IELTS test to better meet your needs. One such development was to introduce a choice of two IELTS tests: Academic or General Training (See page 1).

IELTS General Training is recognized by employers, professional bodies and immigration authorities and their feedback has influenced the content sources used. For example, section two of the Reading component of IELTS General Training was changed to focus more on a work context (e.g. applying for jobs, company policies, pay and conditions, workplace facilities, staff development).

The IELTS test consists of questions that are relevant to the way test takers need to use English in their studies or working lives. IELTS has always included a face-to-face Speaking component which prompts the most realistic performance from test takers. The use of the face-to-face component in a high stakes test is supported by a body of current academic research and continues to set IELTS apart from some other English language tests.

“IELTS makes the world a bigger, more open place. Learning English has transformed me into a citizen of the world.”

The test you can trust

Setting the standard

First released in 1989, IELTS is a test of all four language skills. The IELTS test has established strong credentials for consistently assessing proficiency in listening, reading, writing and speaking. The effectiveness of IELTS rests on four key test qualities:

- Validity — the extent to which test results can be considered a true measure of underlying ability
- Reliability — the extent to which test results are both consistent and accurate, and therefore dependable
- Impact — the positive effect of a test on test takers and society as a whole
- Practicality — the extent to which a test is workable in terms of the resources needed.

Evidence based

The ongoing development, improvement and validation of the IELTS test is supported by research encompassing applied linguistics, language pedagogy and language assessment.

You can read more about IELTS related research initiatives on page 8.

Strength in partnership

IELTS is jointly owned by a partnership of education and language testing experts: the British Council, IDP: IELTS Australia and Cambridge English Language Assessment. Benefitting from the shared expertise of these three global partners, the IELTS test combines the world renowned language and research expertise of Cambridge English Language Assessment and the international delivery, evaluation and security expertise of the British Council and IDP: IELTS Australia.

IELTS examiners

All IELTS examiner applicants must have:

- an undergraduate degree or qualification(s) that can be demonstrated to be equivalent to an undergraduate degree
- a TEFL/TESOL qualification from a recognised institution
- substantial relevant teaching experience. The majority of this teaching experience must relate to adult students (16 years and over).

Applicants fulfilling the above minimum professional requirements to become an examiner undergo a comprehensive and systematic recruitment process which includes the following stages: interview, induction, training, standardization and certification.

Examiners attend regular training sessions and are required to formally demonstrate their marking proficiency through a re-certification process. The marking performance of IELTS examiners is systematically and regularly monitored. Examiner marking standards are maintained through the IELTS Professional Support Network, a quality assurance system designed and managed by British Council and IDP: IELTS Australia.

“We want qualified applicants who can communicate effectively. The IELTS examination is a strong, well-constructed test that caters to this demand.”

Graduate Program Administrator, Brigham Young University, USA
Rigorous test development

The IELTS test is developed to provide a fair, accurate and reliable assessment of English language proficiency for non-native speakers. The IELTS test development process ensures test consistency and fairness to all test takers regardless of their culture or where the test is taken.

Every test version includes a unique combination of questions – no two versions of the test are the same.

Every test is carefully constructed to ensure a consistent level of difficulty. This involves pre-testing (or trialling) each question on a culturally diverse range of language students to determine its suitability and fairness. Statistical analysis is then undertaken to ensure every question performs as designed.

Strict security

IELTS is a high stakes test which leads to local and international opportunity. Therefore test integrity is of paramount importance to recognizing organizations and to test takers alike. The IELTS partners are scrupulous in the management of test delivery. British Council and IDP: IELTS Australia manage the security and quality control of IELTS test centers globally, and are highly selective in the identification of prospective test centers.

Each prospective IELTS test center must undergo a demanding selection process and agree to a stringent set of contractual conditions. IELTS test centers adhere to a detailed code of practice and strict test center operating conditions, including a comprehensive audit programme involving onsite scheduled and/or spot audits.

- Biometric systems
  Biometric systems are used to capture and record each test taker’s finger scan at test registration and before entry to the test. This finger scan is checked on test day to verify test taker identity and ensure that the same person sits all four components of the test. A high resolution photograph of each test taker is taken at the time of registering for the test. This photograph is used to verify that the person who sits the test is the person that registered.

- Checking the result
  The IELTS partners strongly recommend you use the online Verification Service. This allows you to check the authenticity of paper Test Report Form results. If you have any questions regarding a test result, follow the link as instructed by the IELTS Verification Service. For more information about the Verification Service see page 6.

More information relating to IELTS security protocols can be obtained by attending information sessions and face-to-face meetings organized by the IELTS partners for recognizing organizations. If you have any questions, or would like to find out about information sessions in your region, please contact the stakeholder relations teams at the British Council and IDP: IELTS Australia.

Contact details are listed on the outside back cover.
Meeting your needs

Dedicated team

British Council and IDP: IELTS Australia have stakeholder relations teams ready to respond to questions and provide further information. The IELTS partners also deliver regular information sessions and newsletters to keep you up-to-date with the latest IELTS developments.

To keep updated with information sessions or to receive the newsletter please complete the online enquiry form via www.ielts.org/contact

Reach out to more test takers with the IELTS Global Recognition System

In the last 12 months, www.ielts.org received more than ten million unique visitors from more than 200 countries. Benefit from this interest by listing your organization or institution at www.ielts.org/recognition. This online database lists the thousands of organizations around the world which accept IELTS results.

Displaying your organization’s URL and minimum band score requirements on www.ielts.org/recognition will increase your reach to millions of existing and potential test takers. This system also makes it easy for you to compare your band score requirements with those of other organizations around the world.

Registering your organization is easy and free at www.ielts.org/recognition

To register you will simply need to provide the following information via the online registration form:

• contact details for your organization
• minimum IELTS band scores required for entry to your organization
• a relevant URL for your organization (e.g. admissions page, international student page).

Have your IELTS minimum entry requirements changed?

If so, update your organization’s listing on the IELTS website by completing the ‘IELTS Recognition Form’ which can be downloaded at www.ielts.org/recognition

Setting IELTS band score requirements for your organization

IELTS test scores are just one element of your assessment of a test taker’s suitability to join your institution or organization. The level of English needed to perform effectively in study, work or training varies from one situation to another. Each individual organization can therefore set its own minimum IELTS score, depending on its own specific requirements.

For more band score setting advice, see page 13.

IELTS Scores Guide DVD

This DVD includes examples of test takers’ writing specimens and filmed footage of test takers’ speaking performances at different band score levels. The DVD can be ordered via www.ielts.org

Verify IELTS results online

The IELTS Verification Service is a free, secure online service which lets you:

• quickly verify that an applicant is presenting a genuine Test Report Form by checking that the results you receive match the results held on the IELTS database
• conveniently download electronic Test Report Forms in batches.

Please note: The IELTS partners recommend that a Test Report Form which is more than two years old should only be accepted if it is accompanied by proof that a test taker has actively maintained or tried to improve their English.

Gain access to the free IELTS Verification Service at www.ielts.org/verify

Once your organization is listed on www.ielts.org/recognition, you can request access to the Test Report Form Verification Service by downloading and completing the Administrator Application Form at www.ielts.org/verify

For further information please refer to the IELTS Results Verification Service brochure, available at www.ielts.org/institutions

IELTS related research can be found at www.ielts.org/researchers
Continual research based development

The IELTS partners have a longstanding commitment to remain at the forefront of developments in English language testing.

The steady evolution of IELTS is in parallel with advances in applied linguistics, language pedagogy, language assessment and technology. This ensures the ongoing validity, reliability, positive impact and practicality of the test. Adherence to these four qualities is supported by two streams of research.

Internal research

Cambridge English Language Assessment has been creating English examinations for speakers of other languages since 1913 and has unrivalled experience in the field. Internal research activities are managed by Cambridge English Language Assessment’s Research & Validation unit. The Research and Validation unit brings together specialists in testing and assessment, statistical analysis and item-banking, applied linguistics, corpus linguistics, and language learning/pedagogy, and provides rigorous quality assurance for the IELTS test at every stage of development.

Through publications and presentations in the public domain the division makes a valuable contribution to the wider field of language assessment more generally. In particular, Studies in Language Testing is a series of academic volumes edited by Dr Michael Milanovic (Chief Executive of Cambridge English Language Assessment) and Prof Cyril J Weir of the University of Bedfordshire.

It is published jointly by Cambridge English Language Assessment and Cambridge University Press (CUP). The series addresses a wide range of important issues and new developments in language testing and assessment and is an indispensable resource for test users, developers and researchers. There are currently over 40 titles available; a number of these deal specifically with IELTS.

Studies in Language Testing.
Volumes include:

- Volume 34: IELTS Collected Papers 2: Research in reading and listening assessment
- Volume 25: IELTS Washback in Context: Preparation for academic writing in higher education
- Volume 19: IELTS Collected Papers: Research in speaking and writing assessment
- Volume 4: The Development of IELTS: A study of the effect of background knowledge on reading comprehension

Research Notes

Research Notes is a quarterly publication that reports on Cambridge English Language Assessment’s research, test development and validation activities. You can download issues at www.cambridgeenglish.org/researchnotes
External research

An external IELTS research scheme, funded by IDP: IELTS Australia and the British Council, ensures an ongoing relationship with the broader linguistics and language testing community and demonstrates the partners’ commitment to continuous improvement of the test.

Since 1995, over 100 external studies by over 140 unique researchers from a wide cross-section of countries have attracted funding under this jointly-funded scheme.

Such research has become a key component in securing external validation of IELTS.

The four components of IELTS

Listening
Duration: 30 minutes plus 10 minutes to transfer answers to the answer sheet
Format: There are 40 questions

Test takers listen to four recorded texts, monologues and conversations by a range of native speakers, and write their answers to a series of questions.

These include questions which test the ability to understand main ideas and detailed factual information, ability to understand the opinions and attitudes of speakers, ability to understand the purpose of an utterance and ability to follow the development of ideas.

A variety of voices and native-speaker accents is used and each section is heard only once.

Section 1
A conversation between two people set in an everyday social context, e.g. a conversation in an accommodation agency.

Section 2
A monologue set in an everyday social context, e.g. a speech about local facilities.

Section 3
A conversation between up to four people set in an educational or training context, e.g. a university tutor and a student discussing an assignment.

Section 4
A monologue on an academic subject, e.g. a university lecture.

Reading
Duration: 60 minutes
Format: There are 40 questions

A variety of question types are used in order to test a wide range of reading skills. These include reading for gist, reading for main ideas, reading for detail, skimming, understanding logical argument, understanding inferences and implied meaning, and recognizing writers’ opinions, attitudes and purpose.

The Academic and General Training Reading tests both contain three sections. Test takers are required to read a number of texts, with a total length of 2,150 to 2,750 words.

The General Training Reading test differs from the Academic Reading test in the choice of texts (topic, genre, length, number, etc).

IELTS Academic
The Academic Reading test contains three long texts. The texts are authentic and are taken from books, journals, magazines and newspapers. They have been written for a non-specialist audience and are on academic topics of general interest. Texts are appropriate to, and accessible to, test takers entering undergraduate or postgraduate courses or seeking professional registration. Texts range from the descriptive and factual to the discursive and analytical. Texts may contain non-verbal materials such as diagrams, graphs or illustrations. If texts contain technical terms, then a simple glossary is provided.

IELTS General Training
Texts are taken from notices, advertisements, official documents, booklets, newspapers, instruction manuals, leaflets, timetables, books and magazines. These are materials test takers are likely to encounter on a daily basis in an English speaking environment.

“IELTS provides a reliable and internationally accessible means for doctors coming from overseas to demonstrate their language proficiency before they start work.”

Director of Registration and Education, General Medical Council, UK
Writing
Duration: 60 minutes
Format: There are two tasks – to write 150 words and to write 250 words

IELTS Academic
The Writing component of IELTS Academic includes two tasks. Topics are of general interest and suitable for test takers entering undergraduate or postgraduate studies or seeking professional registration.

Task 1
Test takers are presented with a graph, table, chart or diagram and are asked to describe, summarize or explain the information in their own words. They may be asked to describe and explain data, describe the stages of a process, how something works or describe an object or event.

Task 2
Test takers are asked to write an essay in response to a point of view, argument or problem. Responses to both tasks must be written in an academic or semi-formal/neutral style.

IELTS General Training
The Writing component of IELTS General Training includes two tasks which are based on topics of general interest

Task 1
Test takers are presented with a situation and asked to write a letter requesting information or explaining the situation. The letter may be personal, semi-formal or formal in style.

Task 2
Test takers are asked to write an essay in response to a point of view, argument or problem. The essay can be slightly more personal in style than the Academic Writing Task 2 essay.

Speaking
Duration: 11 to 14 minutes
The Speaking test assesses the test taker’s use of spoken English. The Speaking test is delivered in a way that does not allow test takers to rehearse set responses beforehand.

The Speaking test consists of three parts:

Part 1 (4-5 minutes)
Test takers answer general questions about themselves and a range of familiar topics, such as their home, family, work, studies and interests.

Part 2 (3-4 minutes)
Test takers are given a card which asks them to talk about a particular topic. They have one minute to prepare before speaking for up to two minutes. The examiner may then ask one or two questions on the same topic to finish this part of the test.

Part 3 (4-5 minutes)
Test takers are asked further questions connected to the topic in Part 2. These questions give the test taker an opportunity to discuss more abstract issues and ideas.

The Listening and Speaking component is the same for both IELTS Academic and General Training.
IELTS 9-band scale

There is no pass or fail in IELTS. Rather, all test results are reported on a clear 9-band scale (from 1, the lowest, to 9, the highest). The scale has remained consistent and acquired currency around the world over the past three decades.

Test takers receive an overall band score as well as individual scores for each test component (Listening, Reading, Writing and Speaking).

The IELTS test provides an accurate picture of a test taker’s language skills at a certain point in time. Language ability diminishes over time if not actively maintained.

IELTS test score guidance for educational institutions

The level of English needed for a non-native speaker student to perform effectively varies by situation and institution. That is why each individual institution should set its own minimum IELTS score for applicants, depending on specific institutional and program requirements.

Please note: The table below gives guidance on acceptable IELTS band scores for different programs. It should be noted, however, that many diverse variables can affect performance on programs, of which language ability is but one.
